

Chorale starts rehearsals for its 15th concert series

The Rogue Valley Chorale has begun rehearsals for its 15th anniversary concert season. Fall concerts will be presented Dec. 3-4 at the Congregational Church in Medford.

Sean Warren will conduct the chorale this year in the absence of Lynn Sjolund, chorale founder, who is teaching for a second year at Loyola University in New Orleans.

Sean conducted the spring chorale concert series earlier this year.

Born and raised in Medford, Warren is a graduate of Medford Senior High School and earned bachelor's and master's degrees in music education from Lewis & Clark College.

He was director of the Klamath

Symphonic Choir, and choir director at Klamath Union High School and Reynolds High School in Portland before assuming his present post as director of vocal music at North Medford High School.

Leslie Hall is the new president of the chorale board of directors, assisted by Mary Kay Harmin, vice president; Cathy Morrison, secretary, and Kayleen Hart, treasurer.

Other board members are Brian Mullen, Karen Foster, Roseanne Budge, William Haberlach, Judith Cushing, Judith Warren, Ronald Bartlett, Nancy Nelson and Mary Jo Bergstrom.